Further strengthening of Komax Wire

Komax has acquired a stake in the French company Laselec SA. Laselec develops laser-assisted cable stripping and marking solutions as well as intelligent layout boards for wire harness production, which are currently used primarily in the aerospace industry.

Komax has acquired a 20% stake in the French company Laselec SA as part of a capital increase. Headquartered in Toulouse, Laselec employs some 60 staff. Laselec develops cable stripping and marking solutions as well as intelligent layout boards for wire harness production, which are currently used primarily in the aerospace industry. The company has branches in the US and Mexico. Komax and Laselec are already implementing joint customer projects. The two companies will further intensify their collaboration in the future.

In addition, Komax has recently acquired a plot of land adjacent to its existing Dierikon site. This improves the parameters for future growth and the further optimization of operational processes.
